CEO Woodco
Hamed Al Noori

The United Arab Emirates is a balanced combination of tradition and modernity. From the world's tallest skyscraper in Dubai to one of the world's largest mosques in Abu Dhabi, both the Islamic heritage of the country and the adopted global ethos sit happily side by side, creating an indomitable cultural society that offers the best of both worlds to all who function within it. While the UAE may be quite liberal in comparison to other countries in the region, many present-day laws are rooted in Islamic principles.

Kitchens

A woman with dark hair, wearing a light grey long-sleeved top, is leaning on a white kitchen counter. She is smiling and looking towards the camera. Her right hand is resting on her chin. In the background, a kitchen sink with a modern chrome faucet is visible. The overall scene is bright and clean.

“There is no spectacle on earth more appealing than that of a beautiful woman in the act of cooking dinner for someone she loves.”

Live life expressively

Imagine good things happening to you. Write down goals, live life expressively, and fill your house with flowers, music, and anything that brings you inspiration and joy. Accept and expect all that is good in life; inner and outer- and live in the moment as much as possible. Also, discover your role in life- what makes you passionate and enthusiastic. This is called your purpose, that which expresses your uniqueness your bliss.

Living Rooms

"The living room should be a place where we feel totally at ease - temple of the soul."

Reconnecting with Yourself

Multiple commitments and hectic schedules can cause upsets to your daily life. To stay balanced, relaxed and calm, it's necessary every so often to regroup and decompress. Read a book, start an art project, work in the garden or treat yourself to a massage.

If you find that the demands on your time are overwhelming, don't be afraid to politely say "no" when someone asks you to do something. Learn your limits. You can't do it all and you shouldn't feel guilty about it. Be a little selfish once in a while by scheduling "me time" - it will help keep you in touch with yourself in the year ahead.

Bedrooms

" I'm having a great time. It's obviously fun, I'm in bed. I think about how I'm able to breathe, how I'm able to sleep."

Learning to Forgive

Forgiveness is beneficial not only mentally but physically as well. People who forgive tend to be less angry, depressed, stressed out and anxious, and have lower blood pressure and heart rates than those who hold grudges. If you tend to have a hard time letting go of a grievance, consider that forgiveness does not mean you have to forget an incident, but rather that you can place a limit on how it affects you and your relationship with another, and that you benefit from the process as much as the person you have the grudge with.

Dining Rooms

"Some of the most important conversations I've ever had occurred at my family's dinner table."

Celebrating Friends and Family

When it comes down to it, friends, family, loved ones and acquaintances who make you feel more alive, happier, and more optimistic are some of the most important treasures in life. All the money and power you can imagine are not likely to be as satisfying as good conversation, trust, dependability and laughter. Today take a moment to think about the special people in your life, and ways you can keep those relationships strong. Make it a priority to spend some time each week with at least one of them - whether by phone, e-mail, in person, or through a letter. Human connectedness is a powerful healer, one we should all share in.

Bathrooms

"Sometimes that is why you might even stay in the bathroom for even half an hour, making that water running all over, just singing."

A lush green forest with a wide waterfall cascading over rocks. The water is in motion, creating a soft blur effect. The surrounding trees are dense and vibrant green, with sunlight filtering through the canopy. The overall scene is peaceful and natural.

Be positive

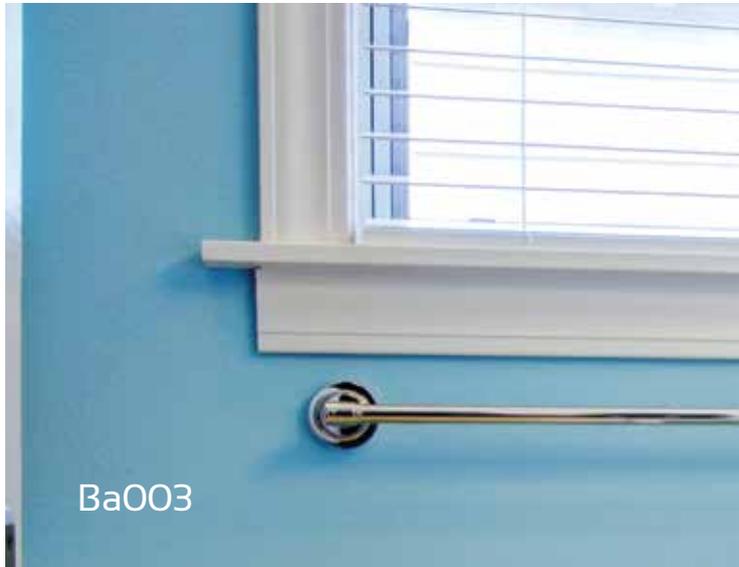

Always remember to love yourself. Treat yourself like a precious jewel and work to discover your own inner nature and personal blueprint for health. Go for a swim in the ocean, book a massage, participate in cleanse, walk barefoot in the dew, dance, start painting- surprise yourself by doing something out of the ordinary and When you meet someone, always offer upliftment, rather than spreading bad news, gossip or negativity. Give someone a hug, make them laugh, or tell them how good they look. Spreading happiness is infectious. Remember laughter is the best medicine!

Doors

"The doors we open and close each day decide the lives we live."

A New Day

Making simple, conscious decisions about your everyday life can influence your physical and mental well-being. Following through on the right resolutions about your health and lifestyle choices is not difficult, especially if you have a firm idea of areas you want to improve, and understand that small, gradual steps typically have better results than cold-turkey or all-or-nothing approaches. Take some time today to consider areas of your life you would like to improve. You may want to be healthier, more generous, less stressed, or just more optimistic. Once you determine your goals, create a timeline and attach some simple steps. Consider your strengths and how they can help you on your path, as well as your weaknesses and ways you can work around and with them. If, during your progress, you take a step backward, keep looking forward. Most goals are reached with both good and bad days playing a part!

Much more organised ...

De-clutter your home, office and life. You don't need stuff. We all have too much stuff. Get rid of the stuff you don't use. All that indispensable rubbish that's laying about in the garage for example. Car boot it, run a garage sale, give it away or whatever - just get rid of it. Your brain will thank you for it and you will feel much more organised.

Offices

“Any office Space is a commonplace.”

Develop self-confidence.

Continuously encourage yourself to do better. Sometimes it may be necessary to push ourselves beyond our limits in certain situations in order to see that the limitations we have placed on ourselves were inaccurate. However, we may need to take risks that do not push us too far beyond our capabilities. In this area it may be difficult to determine specifically what risks are necessary, be cautious in areas that may endanger you permanently, but allow yourself to be free enough to try new things that may help you progressively.

Appreciating Art

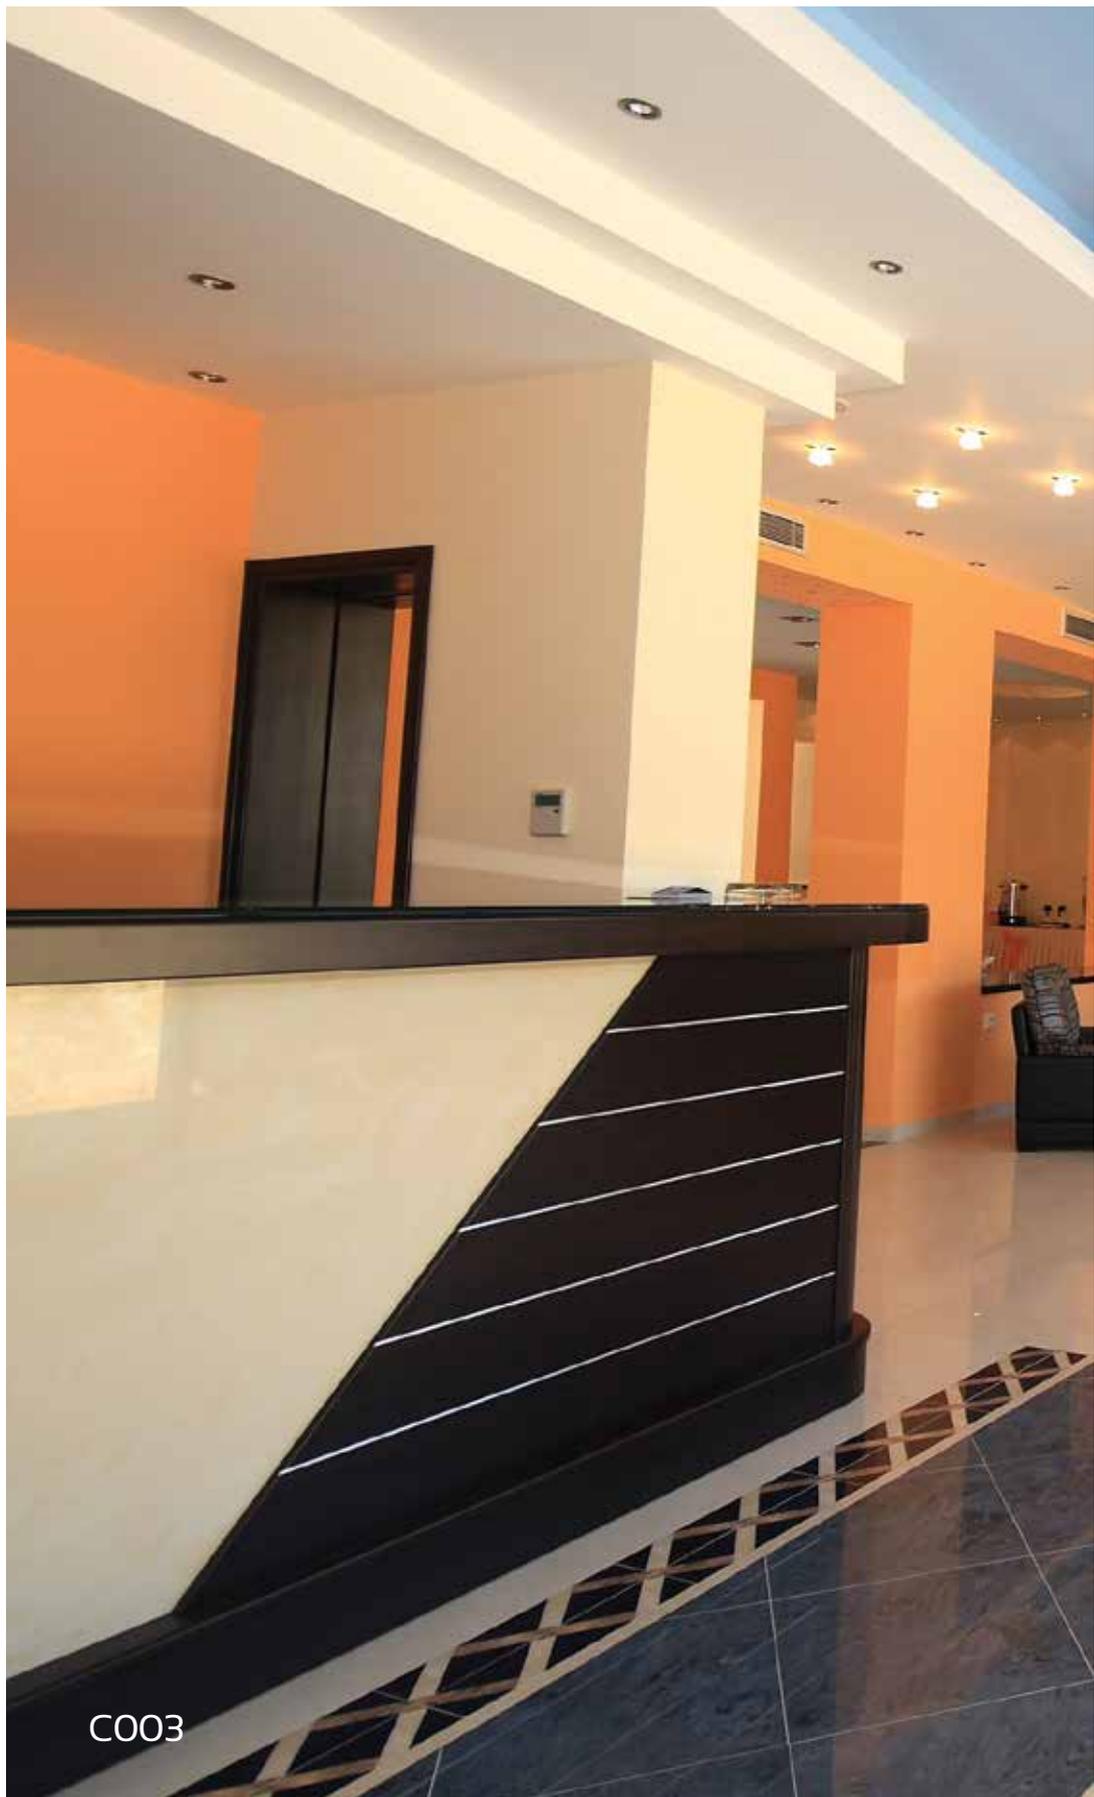

When was the last time you went to an art gallery, museum, or simply walked down the street and appreciated the public works of art that surround many of us? Viewing art is a wonderful way to raise your spirits. Paintings, sculpture, architecture and other forms of art can please the senses and nourish your nonphysical being. They can also inspire creativity and excitement, and can be savored as a tangible expression of history. Next time you see an interesting building, a challenging sculpture or a provoking painting, take a few minutes to look at it from different angles and enjoy the feelings you get from it.

Outdoors

"Outside is inside us all."

Connecting with Nature.

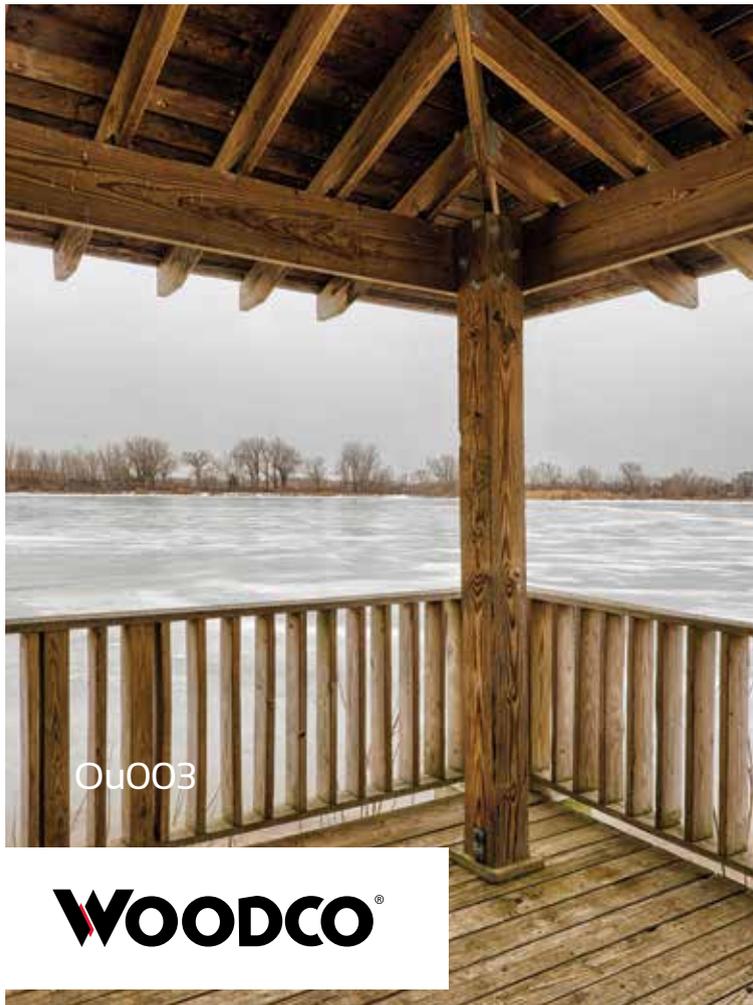

Part of optimal health is experiencing the beauty and spirituality of the outdoors. If you think of nature as a hostile force that is separate from yourself, you will go through life unnecessarily afraid and cut off from one of the great sources of spiritual nourishment. Whether you connect with nature on wilderness trips or on lunch breaks in a city park, you should take the opportunity to slow down a bit and observe the infinite variety of her ways. Try to make plans to spend an entire day outdoors this month and see how this experience heightens your awareness of nature and her precious resources.

Pets

"Such short little lives our pets have to spend with us, and they spend most of it waiting for us to come home each day. It is amazing how much love and laughter they bring into our lives and even how much closer we become with each other because of them."

Bonding with Pets for Health

If you're a pet owner, you won't find it surprising that pets can instill a sense of well-being in people. Studies have shown that pet owners, particularly the elderly, have lower blood pressure, are less likely to be depressed and have higher self-esteem than people who don't have pets. Among the more tangible rewards: A 1999 study in New York, Missouri and Texas found that medication costs dropped in nursing homes that allowed pets. In another study, 70 percent of the families surveyed reported an increase in happiness and fun as a result of acquiring a pet.
